

Present your weather forecast

Imagine you are going to present your weather forecast on TV or on radio.

1. Practice reading your weather forecast several times. Maybe you can even learn it by heart? Pay attention to correct pronunciation. Write down difficult words here and ask your teacher for help:

2. If you decide to make a video, you can create a weather map. You can use it during your presentation to show what you are talking about.

You can draw the map yourself, or you can print one out and add your own weather symbols.

3. Work with a partner so you can film or record each other. You can use a camera, a smartphone or a tablet. It is useful to use a tripod. Don't worry if it is not perfect!

4. Enjoy watching and listening to your classmates' presentations.
