*It is very windy today!
The whole story
is a mess!*

"Will you help me plant the wheat?" asked Little Red Hen.

"No," said the mouse. "I want to play."

"Then I will plant the wheat all by myself," said Little Red Hen,
and she did.

"Will you help me plant the wheat?" asked Little Red Hen.

"No," said the duck, "I want to swim."

This is the story of Little Red Hen, a cat, a duck and a mouse.

"Then I will make the flour all by myself," said Little Red Hen,
and she did.

"Will you help me plant the wheat?" asked Little Red Hen.

"No," said the cat. "I want to sleep."

"No," said Little Red Hen. "I will eat the bread all by myself,"
and she did.

"Will you help me make the flour?" said Little Red Hen.

"No," said the cat, the duck and the mouse.

"Then I will bake the bread all by myself," said Little Red Hen,
and she did.

One day, Little Red Hen found three grains of wheat.

"Will you help me eat the bread?" said Little Red Hen.

"Yes," said the cat, the duck and the mouse.
